

Fake News Detection System

Enter News Text

The United States government announced new economic policies to support small businesses affected by inflation. The policy includes tax relief and financial assistance programs aimed at helping local companies grow and create jobs, according to officials from the Treasury Department.

Predict

Real News